Seoul-based blockchain mainnet specialist Leadpoint System is accelerating its global expansion with cutting-edge infrastructure technologies for stablecoins and real-world assets (RWA). Leveraging its proprietary Funet mainnet and decentralized identity (DID) authentication, the company has secured both scalability and stability, paving the way for a next-generation blockchain finance ecosystem that supports remittances, exchanges, payments, and asset tokenization.

Currently, Leadpoint System has formed strategic partnerships with four companies in the Middle East and India, focusing on mutual support for international market entry through networking and business collaboration. In addition, it is working with two U.S.-based companies to develop technology- and service-driven cooperation models aimed at practical application in financial infrastructure and services.

These partnerships go beyond simple technical collaboration. They emphasize integrating compliance frameworks with financial infrastructure to build a truly global network for payments and remittances. Leadpoint System is showcasing an integrated structure that combines its mainnet with

DID authentication, e-wallets, stablecoins, and RWA trading platforms – expanding the digital finance ecosystem in collaboration with global partners.

The company's business model has also been refined for sustainable growth. Revenue streams include:

- Stablecoin remittance fees
- Exchange transaction margins
- Payment fees via card network integration
- RWA platform usage fees

This recurring, transaction-based model demonstrates strong growth potential within the global financial market.

Leadpoint System is executing a phased global revenue strategy:

- 2025: Secure global partnerships through participation in major domestic and international exhibitions
- 2026: Scale stablecoin payment and remittance services, while partnering with card companies and fintech firms to achieve mid-level overseas revenue
- 2027: Drive large-scale revenue growth through the full-scale commercialization of DID and RWA platforms

Through this strategy, the company aims to increase overseas revenue to more than 50% of total sales within three years.

To support this roadmap, Leadpoint System is actively securing intellectual property rights. The company currently holds 15 registered patents and 37 applications across blockchain consensus algorithms, DID, security, stablecoin infrastructure, and RWA platforms. With a focus on global markets, it is also pursuing overseas patents — including in the United States — to reinforce legal stability and strengthen its intellectual property portfolio.

CEO DoHyoung Kim commented:

“Stablecoins and RWAs are not just digital assets, but core technologies redefining the global financial infrastructure. Leadpoint System will complete a regulatory-compliant stablecoin ecosystem based on mainnet, DID, and e-wallet technologies, and together with our international partners, we will lead the next wave of financial innovation.”
